“We are proud to bring diverse voices from across the globe during Urban October that highlight multiple avenues to transform a city into a safe, liveable and healthy environment for adolescents. The postcards called for a multi-stakeholder approach that fosters collaboration. The need is to establish systems that enable regular dialogue and interaction between city stakeholders to provide young people with the optimal opportunity to participate and inform their holistic development.”

Joyati Das
Program Director, Healthy Cities for Adolescents